

The first photograph relating to other natural sources of air pollution depicts a wildfire with a large dark smoke plume. The caption indicates that wildfires, including forest fires not intentionally set by humans, produce particulate matter and other air pollutants.

The second photograph relating to other natural sources of air pollution shows a lightning bolt. The caption says that lightning contributes to the production of nitrogen oxides (NO_x), which combine with other chemicals in the atmosphere to form ozone.